Prices are F.O.B. mill, excluding freight

The markets in general were cooler for the second week in a row, with the exception being OSB early in the week. A mill fire at LP Hansville over the weekend got buyer's attention early on, but the excitement leveled off by midweek. SYP dimension was generally plentiful in almost all widths. Futures peaked on Monday and dropped from there each day. DF studs are flat. Besides OSB the party may be about over. Secondaries are holding inventories that will need to find homes shortly. Next week will tell a lot as to the staying power of this run.
