Commodity markets in general remain somewhat punkish, though a few species and regions saw a little more activity than in past weeks. GDF saw price firming in the wides, while studs remained readily available and less firm. WSPF narrows firmed a little this week, as did OSB in the south. Better weather forecasted for Texas in the coming week has some speculating that we will see stronger follow thru, but the Midwest and the East continue to grapple with early inclement weather.
