Some markets are heading into the end of the week on more firm footing as lower prices helped buyers in some regions to dust off their PO books. In the West increased activity helped push order files on DF narrows out thru September. Down south SYP traders saw renewed interest from customers who perceived limited downside risk. SPF trading was mixed with prices finishing on both sides of last weeks levels. OSB continues to flounder but we've got bridges for sale to anyone who thinks $155/m 7/16 is going to last. Hang on. Cooler temps are around the corner!
