Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water... Commodity markets, which looked poised for a downward correction last week, saw renewed life by the tail end of the week. SPF futures led the way, with the cash market following closely behind. By the middle of this week most all species were active and up in price as order files stretched into August. Panels followed suit as well, and what little relief we saw coming two weeks ago on the supply side has all but disappeared. We're off to the races again as the July 4th holiday comes into sight.
