Do you remember three or four months ago when all the toilet paper disappeared? You could find it occasionally online, but it was $75 for six rolls of gas station quality... and you were like "What?!!" Yeah. That is the commodity market right now, both lumber and panels - Can't find it, and if you do, the price is gonna have you using foul language. We are living in that reality at the moment, but just like toilet paper, the shelves will one day be restocked and the prices will return to normal.

In the meantime, dust off your cuss jar and hang tough.

 With baseball season starting this week, in honor of our recently departed friend and coworker Rob Becker, we'd like to add "Go Tigers!". Thanks for everything Robby.
