If a tree falls in the forest, and there's no one around to hear it, does it still make noise? Beats me. But it makes a lot of money... more this week than last week. The market remains in ludicrous mode as demand remains very strong despite prices that are four or five times historic highs. The stock market and lumber futures had a week of downside adjustment on inflation fears. It appears that we are getting closer to a tipping point of some sort, but exactly when and how long it will last is anyone's guess. An early start to fire season has injected more uncertainty about a prolonged downturn.
