Prices are F.O.B. mill, excluding freight

It was another very difficult week for anyone sourcing anything made of wood. Mills continue to show very little volume, and when they do it disappears instantly at virtually any asking price. Complaints about the lack of available labor available for a mill to add shifts (volume) are frequent, but at these returns they'll soon be able to afford to hire Bill Gates to run the sort chain. SPF and SYP dimension continue to be all the rage with another week of giving us the high, hard increases. Panels remain on the upswing as well, albeit to a lesser degree in some regions. Job delays are on the increase as the shock of this market takes hold at the owner/developer level.
