Activity in multifamily remains brisk, and lumber pricing is at appealing levels for most budgets. SPF firmed this week, and word that a major producer is pulling significant volume at multiple mills came late in the week. Coupled with other curtailments, this could be the catalyst for a bounce off the bottom in SPF - time will tell. Meanwhile, Hurricane Ida (no relation) did little to disrupt production but brought plenty of rain and flooding to muck up construction in the south and east. Panels continue to firm up, led by OSB as manufacturers continue to manipula...errr... manage supply of open market wood. SYP plywood has firmed as well, with fir lagging slightly behind. Have a great Labor Day break and get ready to watch the pigskins fly!
