Most buyers were content to remain on the sidelines as price erosion again prevailed across the full spectrum of lumber and panel markets. Both producers and secondaries worked hard to leverage relationships, seeking last look as market levels continue to be difficult to define. SYP plywood, which had a couple of weeks of soft support on the heels of the ruling against Brazilian imports, saw said support collapse this week. The futures board saw another week of softness as it continues below cash - but cash is quickly catching up - or maybe better said - cash is catching down to futures. Another rough week for those needing to sell.
