The week started off with very little activity out West and slight firming up in the East and South. Extremely heavy rain and continued economic headwinds have been relentless, stalling demand on most items. As the week progressed DF studs firmed up slightly, Pine and SPF have found a little traction, and the futures board is up almost 10% on the week. Mills continue to threaten curtailments, with several following through, Intefor announced a large cut in production for Q1 on Wednesday. As pricing/demand push along at multi-year lows expect more news of production cuts on both panels and lumber. Who doesn't love cheap material and playoff football... neither lasts forever, enjoy it while you can.
