Supply and demand remained mostly in check as summer heat spread across the country. In the West, traders returned from the Inland Lumber event to a slightly more tepid pace. A few quick-shipping items popped up, but they were mostly oddball tallies. Wides continue to push higher as demand has outpaced supply for most of the year. In the East, summer heat and Southern rain have kept the market somewhat subdued, although slight increases continue. The week-over-week price gains from coast to coast have puzzled even the most experienced buyers, but the grind continues. The Club World Cup wraps up this weekend... will Messi raise the trophy, or will the conquistadors from Spain come out on top?
